

Dr. Ronald O. Brown
Consultant

IEEE Maine
Communications
Computer Societies
Joint Chapter

You Are What You Write – And Say

Date: Nov 7, 2006, Time: 1:00pm

Place: Hill Auditorium, ECE Dept, UMaine, Orono

Abstract

What you write and say are your faces to the world. It's how others perceive you. After you've attained a reasonable level of technical competence, your written and oral expression becomes your most critical career success factor. Dr. Brown's presentation, based on his decades of experience, will offer a myriad of tips, with lots of examples, to improve your writing and presentation skills. More importantly, it offers a road map for continuing self-improvement of your writing and presentation skills.

Short Bio

Dr. Ronald O. Brown, President of Ronald O. Brown Consulting, is an independent information technology and enterprise network management consultant. He received the BSEE the University of Maine, MSEE from Tufts University, and PhD from Queen's University at Kingston.

Dr. Brown is a member of the IEEE, Professional Engineer, and member of the Boards of Directors of Cooperative Communications, a New Jersey-based Competitive Local Exchange Carrier, and MTUG, the Maine Telecommunications Users Group.

He has lectured at several universities, written many articles for IT and telecommunications publications, given numerous presentations at telecommunications and information technology conferences, and has been widely referenced in the press.

For more info and registration visit:

<http://www.eece.maine.edu/~abedi/comsoc/>