

The 8th IEEE International Conference on Nanotechnology

Call for Exhibits

The 8th IEEE International Nanotechnology Conference is the premier IEEE conference presenting the latest research and application in the field of nanotechnology. The IEEE Nano 2008 conference to be held in Arlington, TX August 18 – 21, 2008 will include exhibits and demonstrations that present the latest innovations, achievement, products, experiences, and practices.

The IEEE Nano 2008 conference will provide the exhibit hall for publishers, commercial exhibits, and academic research demonstrations. With over 500 university, scientific, and engineering professionals, the draw will be large with the right people. The technical program includes notable plenary speakers of the field, case study reports, invited industrial, university, and government agency talks, and research and commercial application demonstrations. You will be missed if not there!
