“Uniting Central Florida through Advancements in Technology”

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Ted Drzewiecki

Dr. Drzewiecki presentation is titled: “Emerging Technologies and advances in Biomedical Engineering and Biotechnology”

Dr. Drzewiecki is an internationally recognized expert with 44 years of experience in fluidics, microfluidics, medical instrumentation and sensors, and close combat weapons systems. During his 15 year tenure at the birthplace of fluidics, US Army Harry Diamond Laboratories (HDL), and 26 years at Defense Research Technologies (DRT), he developed the theoretical and practical aspects of no-moving-parts, non-electronic fluid amplification, which today is the basis of modern fluidic signal processing technology and has been the enabling technology for the miniature integrated microfluidic circuits used in medical gas analyzers and metabolic rate monitors.
